These are the revenue lines of the 2026 budget, meaning where the association's money comes from. The first three lines together are your monthly maintenance fee, and they make up about 92% of revenue.

Line	2026 annual	What it means
Owner Assessments	$5,303,473	The part of owners' monthly maintenance fees that pays day-to-day operating costs: staff, insurance, utilities, contracts and repairs. It is split among the 254 units by each unit's ownership percentage.
Reserve Income	$572,514	The part of the monthly fee set aside for the regular (pooled) reserves. That is savings for future replacements such as elevators, painting and paving. It isn't really new income: the same amount shows up as an expense ("Reserve Transfers") and is moved into the reserve bank account.
Reserve Income SIRS	$1,072,116	The same idea, but for the Structural Integrity Reserve Study (SIRS). Florida requires this reserve for structural items: roof, structure, waterproofing, plumbing, electrical, windows and fireproofing. It is new in 2026 and is also passed straight through to a reserve account.
Late Fee Income	$5,000	Penalties charged to owners who pay their fees after the due date.
Screening Fees	$1,000	Fees paid by buyers or tenants for the association's background and application check before they are approved.
Moving Fees	$11,700	Fees charged when residents move in or out, for reserving the service elevator and dock and for wear on common areas.
Dumpster Fees	$3,000	Charges to owners who put a dumpster on the property, usually during unit renovations.

Line	2026 annual	What it means
Key Fob Income	$3,000	Money from selling access fobs (electronic keys for doors, garage and elevators) to owners, including replacements.
Interest Income	$15,000	Interest the bank pays on the association's operating accounts.
Miscellaneous Income	$3,500	Small, irregular receipts that don't fit another line.
Special Assessment Residual	$500,000	Money left over from an earlier special assessment (an extra one-time charge to owners), now used to help pay 2026 costs. As noted in the report, this is one-time money, so it won't be there in 2027.
Administrative Fee – Reminder Letter	$1,000	A fee charged to late-paying owners to cover the cost of sending collection reminder letters.
Rental Income	$70,000	Money from renting out association-owned space or rights. Examples include a guest suite, storage units, commercial space, or rooftop antenna/cell-tower leases. The budget doesn't say which, so it's worth asking.
House Charges	$1,500	Charges billed to a specific owner for work done for them, for example maintenance staff doing a job inside a unit.
Common Area Income	$1,400	Fees for reserving shared amenities, such as a party room, clubroom or barbecue area, for private events.
Cable Income	$5,100	Money related to the bulk cable contract, such as payments for extra boxes or a revenue share or marketing fee from the provider. It is small next to the $275,000 cable expense.

Everything after the first three lines, other than the $500,000 residual, adds up to only about $121,000, or roughly 1.6% of revenue. So almost the whole budget depends on owners' fees plus that one-time residual.
